

Bianca (Yellow 2015). 97% Perendale yearling ewe lamb fleece. 7.6 lb, $18/lb, 6+” staple (unstretched), $123 total (not including shipping) after 10% discount in case of fragile tips.

Bianca was so-named because of her gorgeous white fleece. Bianca’s mother was purchased from California (where she was bred by Marta Sullivan of Currow Hill Ranch) as a five-year-old ewe. Bianca’s fleece tested at a 36.9 micron count, with a 6”+ staple length. As one of the larger fleeces, I skirted with an especially heavy hand. Bianca’s fleece weighs 7.6 pounds skirted.

Above: overview of Bianca’s fleece, from head towards rear quarters.

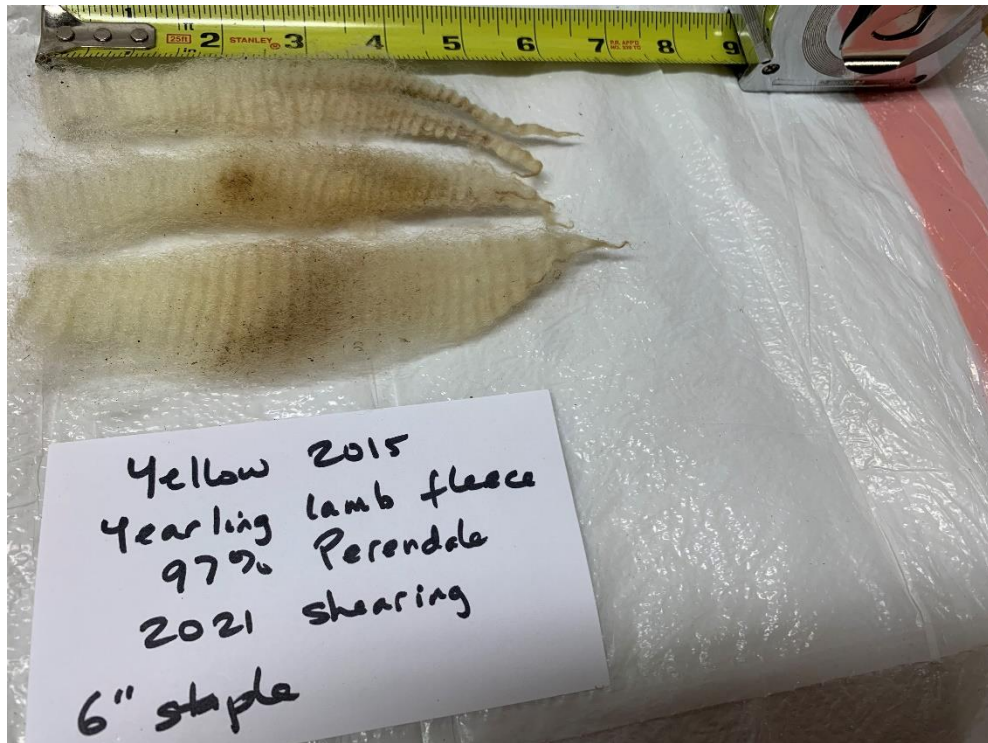

Above: view of front quarter of Bianca’s fleece.
(Continued on next page)

Above: view of middle of Bianca's fleece

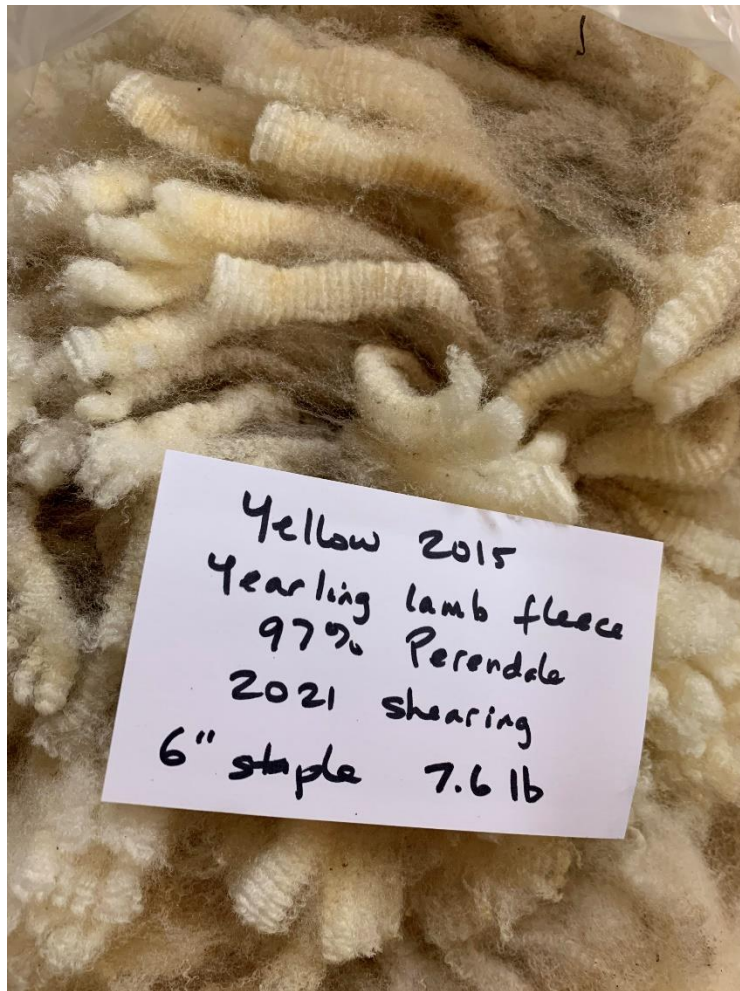

Above: view of rear quarter of Bianca's fleece
(Continued on next page)

Above: three locks of Bianca's fleece, taken at random from (top to bottom) front, middle, and rear quarters. All locks tested sound. I forgot to take a similar photo of washed locks, but all washed clean.

View of cut side of Bianca's fleece.
(Continued on next page)

View of Bianca's fleece, as bagged.